KRAZY KAT "FOR CRIME'S SAKE"

Produced by Charles B. Mintz Distributed by Paramount

The town is over-run by criminals. A reward is offered for the person who can check the crime wave. Krazy Kat comes to town playing his magic flute. He notices the sign offering the reward and tells the Police Commissioner that with his magic flute he can check the crime wave. He proceeds to demonstrate and the bandits are drawn to him as though he were a magnet. But when he stops playing for a second, a bandit steals his magic flute.

A chase ensues. The bandit raises up the sidewalk and goes down in an elevator to his den. Krazy Kat follows and is bound and and gagged by the thieves. He is placed in the torture chamber and is to be burned at stake. The guard falls asleep and Krazy Kat escapes. He regains his magic flute.

He starts to play the flute and the criminals reform and start to dance around like fairies. He marches through the town to the jail, the bandits following. The Captain brings out the reward and congratulates Krazy Kat on his great feat. Krazy Kat stops playing to gather up the money and the bandits are transformed into their former characters again. As he is counting his money, the bandits jump on him, beat him up and take away his money.
